

People in your neighborhood

God has placed people around you who could have the opportunity to live the abundant life through Christ if they knew Jesus. You might be the person God uses to introduce them to him. Use this neighborhood map to help you think about how to be intentional with those who live around you.

People in your classroom or office

Every day you walk into a room or a space full of people who could have the opportunity to live the abundant life through Christ if they knew Jesus. You might be the person God uses to introduce them to Him. Use this map to write out the names of people who sit around you every day, whether you're in a classroom or an office.

People in your life

God has placed people around you to love, pray for and even share the gospel with. Use this map to write down the names of people you interact with, whether it's sports teammates, friends who come to your house regularly, the gym, work or other places you visit. This exercise can help you think about how to be intentional with those around you.
